DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claim 3 is objected to because of the following informalities: "the switch" should correctly be – the analogue switch --. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Nogi (6,734,746).

Regarding claim 1, Nogi (Fig. 1) discloses an amplifier circuit comprising: an analog input signal coupled to an inverting input (-) via a resistor (R11) and a switch (SW1) can be read as an analogue switch, with switch input connected to the input terminal and a switch output connected to the switch input via resistor (R12) to provide negative feedback.

Regarding claim 2, wherein the switch output is connected to an output terminal.

Regarding claim 3, wherein the analogue switch is connected to a supply voltage.

Regarding claim 4, wherein the switch input is connected to the analog input signal via the resistor (R11), which can be read as a first resistance.

Regarding claim 5, wherein the switch output is connected to the input terminal via the resistor (R12), which can be read as a second resistance.

Regarding claim 6, wherein a closed gain can be determined from ration of the resistor (R12) and resistor (R11).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nogi.

Nogi discloses the claimed invention except the switch is configured to operate at temperature of at least 200 degree C. However, configuring the switch for a given intended use would be a matter of routine experimentation, and thus would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, because this is design engineering.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The additional references (Wang (5,585,756); Albaugh et al. (4,641,105); Hekimian (3,694,748)) show further analogous prior art circuitry having switching output.
